The Hou, Cornellus P. Dooly, Esq., formerly of Belly kilduff, remarked that the consumption of wearing apparel had been greatly stimulated by the late political excitement. He assures us that fregments of shirts and other articles of apparel are frequently found after discussions of important questions. The distinguished legislator had no hestitation in asserting that some districts where party feeling ran high, the wardrobe had been so largely drawn upon that a "famine" in such articles might be apprehanded. We listened with interest to the honorable member's recital and hastened to inform him that R. S. PARKES, 14 East Washington street, would be prepared to supply any deficiencies for each "down on the nail,"

BY GEORGE W. CABLE. A STORY OF CREOLE LIFE.

MERRILL, HUBBARD & CO.'S Bookstore, No. 5 E. Washington St.

THE DAILY NEWS.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1880,

THE British government has decided practically to abandon Cyprus, and the British people are beginning to see how much tinselry, colored lights, and slow fiddling there was in Beaconsfield's theatrical policy.

IF the citizens of Indiana intend to have their will recorded as it is expressed on October 12, unmarred by fraudulent votes or false counts, they must bring to bear al lawful aids, and must see to it that strice justice prevails everywhere.

THAT naval demonstration will have to end its dress parade and begin action if it hopes to effect any thing. The Turk is stiff-necked in his refusal to be coerced and the allied powers will now have the the opportunity of showing whether they mean what they say or not. There are the elements of a general war in this squab-ble, and it may be the exit of the "sick man of Europe" will be attended by a "wake" and a free fight all around.

THE day after the monster democratic parade in New York there was a decline in stocks and government bonds. The whole market is feverish and unsettled, and if Indiana goes democratic it is pre-dicted there will be a crash. Democratic brokers concede this, but say it is natural; that if some one were to succeed Vanderbilt, stocks would decline though the sucdistrust of the democracy, and the fear that, if they get into power, they will go to tinkering with the currency or indulge in general legislation which will affect our redit. One thing is certain, at the first appearance of a democratic triumph in Maine there was a fall in value, repre-senting in government bonds alone millions of dollars, and at every apparent demo-cratic success the same thing has happened. These are cold facts. There are no politics in stocks. Plainly the busines interests distrust the democracy. We conclude however, great the risk is, that the country will not take it simply for the sake of finding out its extent. It is not often a man hangs himself in order to learn how it feels.

THERE is a colossal campaign story published now that New York merchants have raised a fund of $950,000 to aid the ablicans here to carry Indiana, If this be true it shows how much alarmed the business interests are at the prospect of democratic successs. The story further says that "Johnny" Davenport, of New York, is to have charge of all the paraphenalia of the election laws. All this

"double-leaded" stuff we think is mere the use of money we doubt not both sides are well prepared. The idea that some-thing like a million dollars, however, are sent here to aid the republicans is a figment of a disordered imagination. If they have one-tenth that sum, all told, they are well off. It looks very much as if the democracy was hunting a soft place to fall in Indiana.

Sir Bartle Frere, ex governor of the Cape and suthor of the Zulu war, in his speech prior to leaving for England, challenged the government to declare him either a great public servant or a great criminal. Some boys recently dragged out of the bed of the river near Stillwater village one of Burgoyne's four-pounder iron cannons, which has Jain there for nearly 103 years. The recent spontaneous combustion of coal on the steamer Alsatia brings out the statement that the soft coal mined in this country is much less liable to take fire spontaneously than Nova Scotia and certain kinds of English coal. The reason given is that American coal is less strongly impregnated with sulphur, and so far as is known by those who have given the subject careful attention, there has been no instance where American coal has ignited on board a vessel.

Probably the worst telegraphic blunder on

Probably the worst telegraphic blunder on record was one that occurred some time ago in a telegram received by a St. Louis merchant while in New York. A dispatch came informing him of his wife's illness in St. Louis. He sent a message to his family doctor asking the nature of her sickness and if there was any danger, and received promptly the answer: "No danger. Your wife has had a child. If we can keep her from having another to-night she will do well." The mystification of the agitated husband was not removed until a second inquiry revealed the fact that the indisposed lady had had a "chill."

A sewing machine agent, in driving through Monroe county, Kentucky, drew up before a cottage and asked a beardless, sixbefore a cottage and asked a beardless, sixteen-year-old boy standing in the yard if his mother was at home. "She is; but she don't live here," he answered. "I'm the head of this house." Finding the boy married, the sgent went inside and encountered a child, who said she was the boy's wife, and that when she was married she was not eleven years old. "What on earth did you two marry for?" saked the agent. "What do other folks marry for?" the child replied. The boy said that he intended to buy a sewing machine for his wife when she got old enough to sew. "Come around in three or four years," he said, "and I'll take one."

battery is a big elephant on the hands of the state of New Jersey. In 1843 Robert Stevens, a Hoboken millionaire, conceived the idea of constructing a maminoth war vessel, capable of resisting all sorts of attack, and he began work on the hattery. After his death, his brother Edwin Stevens continued to labor on it. When he died he bequeathed $1,500,000 to complete it. Less than $100,000 of the appropriation remains, and the battery is still, after thirty-seven years, in an unfinished state. It was willed by the Stevenses to the state of New Jersey, but the heirs have since brought suit to have the title declared to be in them. The New Jersey courts have refused to endorse their claums, and the appeal of the heirs to the United States court is yet pending. Meanwhile the battery stands upon property belonging to the Stevens estate at Hoboken. Money is being lost on the $0,000 square feet of ground occupied by the battery, and a new building is required for its protection. The cost of the battery, if completed, will be about $2,500,000. The government would not allow its sale, in the time of war, to foreign states, and it would not bring an acceptable price in time of peace.

It does seem that the readers of the Indianapolis Sentinel, Evansville Courier, and those who pursue the Jourier-Journal's Indianapolis correspondent's sickening twaddle concerning Landers "getting away" with Porter in joint debates would be naus ated to a degree beyond description. Avery democrat who heard any of the debates felt sorry for his party, Landers is no sort of a match for Porter in debate. Porter made the wrong side seem the better, while Landers butchered the king's English, aimlessiy wandered and floundered about and ruined a good cause, made himself a laughing stock, and humiliated those who attempted to belster him up to save the democratic banner from trailing in the dust. Let us hear no more of the silly brag and bluster about Landers desiring thirteen more debates with Porter. He has had thirteen too many for his own good, and entirely too many to please democrats. [New Albany-Ledger Standard,]

The Same Old Story.

In consequence of the reckless and extravagant felling of timber that has prevailed throughout western Russia during the greater part of the present century, several of the streams feeding the Dnieper have become dried up, while others contribute so little water to the great river that its navigation has already suffered serious prejudice, and is, in some portions of its course, threatened with absolute interruption. Rocks and sandy islands in great number, forming sections of its bed, may now be seen where a few years so from twelve to fifteen feet of water had ago from twelve to fifteen feet of water had hid them from view. As the Daieper tra-verses and largely contributes to the prosper-ity of no fewer than nine Russian provinces or "governments," this falling off in its di-mensions and capacities is in reality little short of a national calamity.

Mr. Gladstone is now the favorite at court, and his slightest wish the queen has shown a disposition to humor. Should the prime minister suggest that the first regular ression of the new parliament might be opened with propriety by the sovereign, the suggestion will, it is whispered, be acted upon, and from a hint dropped by a minister who knows more than his colleagues of the premier's mind, the proposal will be made at the proper time."
